JACQUI HAWKINS: Your community Independent for Benambra

I'm fighting for:

A world-class hospital for Albury Wodonga and better regional healthcare

Meaningful action to tackle the cost of living

Better access to mental health care

Investment in regional renewables and strong climate action

Integrity in politics and a stronger anti-corruption commission

Investment in early childhood education infrastructure and better pay for early childhood educators

More affordable and social housing, and a youth foyer

Reliable public transport and better regional connectivity

Investment in attracting, retaining and developing our regional workforce

I'm a fifth generation local from a farming family in Staghorn Flat. I've lived, worked, volunteered, and studied here, and now I want to serve Benambra as its Independent representative in the Victorian Parliament.

My work has taken me across a range of different sectors - from veterinary services to manufacturing; research to road construction; federal politics to higher education; and bushfire recovery to regional tourism.

As a community Independent candidate, I am fighting for our community to have its voice heard, its needs advocated for and its aspirations represented in state parliament without party politics getting in the way.

As your Independent representative for Benambra, my vote in parliament will never be influenced by party politics, donors, lobbyists or backroom deals and my policy priorities will always be developed in consultation with community and expert advice.

I'll work for a strong local economy, for local businesses and food producers, for better healthcare, and to ensure our elected representatives are held to account and that taxpayer money is invested wisely and in the public's interest.
